ABSTRACT

The paper provides quantitative data on graduate degrees offered by the Universidad de Buenos Aires, in the context of the national and regional supply of graduate courses.

It analyzes the different institutional sectors –specialization, master’s degrees and doctorates– from the point of view of academic performance and the fulfillment of their specific mission.

Lastly, it reflects on urgent matters that are still outstanding in order to promote graduate degrees at a level of excellence which will answer to the needs of civil society, to cultural training in science and technology in the context of economic globalization and regionalization.
